LONG DISTANCE CALLS WITHIN YOUR LATA

LATA--Local Access Transport Area--is a geographical region that defines how telephone companies now handle long distance calls. Indiana has ten LATAs. Bourbon is in the South Bend LATA on the map at the bottom. General Telephone can provide only local and long distance services only within a LATA. General Telephone also provides access to long distance companies that connect calls across LATA boundaries.

For example, General Telephone can handle a call from Bourbon to Nappanee, or a call from Millwood to Elkhart. But other long distance companies now are responsible for connecting calls from one LATA to another--such as a call from Bourbon to Columbus. It's important to note that LATAs do not change area codes.

A list of communities within your LATA are shown in the following list. Rates for calling within this LATA are lowest when you dial the calls yourself.
