The Bell Aircraft Museum, located at 210 South Oak Street, Mentone, is a museum centered around a man by the name of Lawrence D. Bell. Bell was an aircraft industrialist who helped supply the United States military with bombers and other aircraft. His efforts resulted in the Bell X-1, the first aircraft to break the sound barrier in level flight.

If you have never been down to the museum I suggest you do! It has so many interesting items! I go once a year and I never run out of things to look at!
